Pair of vintage, white, porcelain vase, table lamps, 17½" high
White is not a neutral colour: it forces other colours to reveal themselves. Its blankness suggests both beginnings and endings, while its purity evokes impossibility and obsession. The form of the vase is fluid and soft and the craquelure creates a beautiful pattern. The vases have a pared down contemporary aesthetic and would harmonise with any decorative scheme. 20th century conversion to electricity. Pricing £ 1,000
